

JEFFERSON DAVIS

To Depart for His Beauvois Home Tomorrow.

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE AGED CHIEF

In Which He Shows Himself to be Sprightly and Hearty—Please With the Macon Trip.

MACON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—It is a special privilege granted your correspondent this evening to visit Hon. Jeff Davis at the home of Mr. J. M. Johnson. Mr. Davis was sitting in an arm chair, conversing in a pleasant way, with the little daughter of Captain Johnson when the reporter entered. His aged face was wreathed in smiles as he was entertaining his little hostess. Owing to the fact that Mr. Davis dislikes to be made a political issue, and also is not inclined to be misquoted by the northern press, as he has been, no interview was granted. It was a privilege, however, to be allowed to shake the old hero's hand and bid him adieu, perhaps forever. When introduced as "a wire grass boy," he greeted our correspondent cordially and said:

"Yours is a noble country. No better soldiers were sent than the men from wire grass Georgia."

From that the talk drifted into general topics, and Mr. Davis expressed himself as delightedly gratified with his reception at Macon. He is looking bright and cheerful, and although sensational reports were sent out to certain northern papers last night that he was dead, he is one of the liveliest men of his age in Georgia, and it is the devout wish of the people of Georgia that he may live for many years yet.

Mr. Davis expressed himself as highly gratified with their reception in Macon. The young ladies, Miss Winnie and Mrs. Hayes, arrived tonight, and the party will leave for Beauvois tomorrow. They leave with the best wishes of Georgians for a safe journey home.

Captain Young, of the Southwestern railroad, feels somewhat aggrieved that THE CONSTITUTION reporter should have put him down as "Rebuking the Grand Army of the Republic," of which he is a post officer. The intent of the article was not to injure him, and he ought to understand that in the hurry and bustle of the reception things crept in unintentionally. He will be conductor on the train that carries the Davis family to Beauvois tomorrow.

A DESPERATE FIGHT

Between a Deputy Sheriff and a Negro—Court Matters.

MACON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—This morning Judge Harris fined half a dozen witnesses for not appearing in court city as summoned. Albert Prince failed to appear on a charge of assault and his bond was forfeited.

Solicitor Hardman issued a warrant for Albert Akin to answer a charge of Mr. O'Pry went out to arrest him. The negro was all right until it came time to go, when he drew a knife, and the deputy had to pull his gun to enforce compliance.

Albert reluctantly consented to go in the buggy, but when the driver struck the negro between the wheels and then a chase ensued. At length the officer collared him, when Albert got Mr. O'Pry's thumb between his teeth and chewed it vigorously. He was lodged in jail after much trouble, and a warrant will be issued for him for assaulting an officer.

WEDDED BLISS.

An Interesting Nuptial Event in Macon Yesterday.

MACON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—A grand social event occurred at St. Paul's church, and was witnessed by a great crowd of admiring friends, the marriage of Mr. Thos. S. Brantly and Miss Mary Clayton. The Rev. Dudley Powers, rector of St. Paul's church, performed the ceremony. The following were the attendants:

Mr. W. A. Redding and Miss Fannie Cook. Mr. Bob Slim and Miss Retta Gregory, of Memphis.

Mr. Jno. S. Ernest and Miss Mamie Gregory, of Atlanta. Mr. Henry H. Holst and Miss Julia Smith. Mr. Asher Ayres and Miss Vola Cook.

Mr. Stewart Jones and Miss Kittey Freeman. Mr. Ross White and Miss Jessie Godwin.

Mr. Charles C. Sims, Jr., acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Brantly will take a bridal tour to the west. The group is a number of the firm of Brantly & Brantly, retail shoe dealers, and is doing a most prosperous business.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS INVOLVED.

Suit for Damages Against a Private Railroad.

MACON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—The term of the circuit court was taken up today, with the trial of the case of F. M. Mickeljohn vs. the Georgia Land and Lumber company. This is a suit for $10,000 damages for injuries sustained by Mr. Mickeljohn, a young engineer, in an accident on a private railroad belonging to the Land and Lumber company. It is probable that several days will be consumed in the trial of this case. Many fine legal points are involved, and the case will be strongly contested.

Mr. Bartlett and Bacon and Butherford for plaintiffs. Hines and Hill and Harris for defendants.

J. J. Clay was presented with the very best suit of clothes Sheca could make today, by an unknown friend for his work during the fair.

In the list of state fair premiums there was a silver medal for the best oil painting other than portrait, to Mrs. M. G. Smith, of Macon.

GEORGIA GOVERNOR.

What the Macon People Think of His Answer.

MACON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—Your correspondent, after reading the Associated Press report of Governor Gordon's Cleveland speech, and consulting the leading citizens of Macon to get their opinion of his answer to the query "Is there a man in the audience?" while some thought that he ought to have replied frankly, as to what his ideas were, most of them thought that he did exactly right. The general opinion was that he did well, and that the best way Governor Gordon could have replied was in the non-committal way in which he did.

Brilliant With Business.

CANTON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—Canton is brilliant with business and everybody is more or less busy. Cotton is coming in pretty rapidly and brings a good price, and our merchants are selling goods extremely low. Business has begun. Mr. W. S. Scott has sold his interest in the cotton goods of Keith & Bro., to Mr. H. D. Bryant, of Gordon county. Mr. Bryant will remove to this place within the next few days. Other changes have taken place or will take place here in the next few weeks.

THE Georgia, Carolina and Northern.

ELBERTON, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—Colonel Morrison, chief engineer of the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad, is surveying a new route for the road, which is an air line from Winterville, six miles below Athens, down the Little River to Walton's Mill, in Savannah river. The people of Elberton are beginning to lose confidence in the good faith of the company, as they are prepared to do all that was required of them to bring the road through the town.

A Runaway Yoke of Steers.

ALBANY, Ga., November 2.—[Special.]—Luther Brooks, a young farmer of Baconton, met with a serious accident today. He was breaking a yoke of steers, when they ran away, throwing him out of the cart overturning it upon him. His head was severely gashed.

He was brought to Albany for surgical treatment.

"Capital and Labor in Georgia."

Under the above caption somebody signing himself "Veritas," writes from Evansville, Indiana, to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, as follows:

"We are in your line on one thing: That General Gordon while traveling through Ohio will be struck with the well-to-do and prosperous white laboring classes of Georgia—made so by competition with the dog-poo negro. Nowhere else earth, I fancy, is a poor white man, so inferior and wretchedly poor as in Georgia. That is the crux of the negro's case, and all the curse of it. A poor white man has no earthly show beside it. He must sleep a dozen in a cabin and go half fed to keep body and soul together, like the negro, if he can live. There is absolutely no other chance for him.

This fellow, who signs himself "Veritas" because he is a liar, hardly deserves a reply. It is a well known fact that the south is the poor man's country. We have no great millionaires, no bloated monopolists, no grasping syndicates of capitalists. In this favored land even the unskilled laborer and the lazy man find it possible to live, and do very little work. Starting less than a quarter of a century ago, with our property absolutely swept away, the rise and progress of this section, and the increase in the value of its diversified products, have excited the wonder and admiration of the world. It is only recently that the federal government was so much impressed with the rapid development of the south that it issued a special volume of statistics devoted to the material interests of this region.

"Veritas" thinks that Governor Gordon while traveling through Ohio was struck with "the well-to-do and prosperous white laboring classes of Georgia."

If our governor kept his eyes open he saw something else. He saw capitalists and laborers ready to cut each other's throats; discontented workmen held in check by Pinkerton's henchmen; the red rag of anarchy floating in the breeze; a strike every day in the year, and evictions more violent and brutal than any that have occurred in Ireland.

The traveler in Ohio sees all these things, but no man has ever seen them in Georgia. Here the honest and industrious poor man is sure of a livelihood, sure of a home, and sure of a voice in the government under which he lives. Let "Veritas" look upon this picture and then take a look at Ohio.

K. C. MURRAY, of Virginia, a brother of Dr. P. E. Murray, of Atlanta, has been appointed to fill the position of editor on the Norfolk Landmark, solon and ably filled by Captain James Barron Hope, the poet editor. The selection is a good one. Mr. Murray is intelligent, bright and a forcible writer. He will wage a vigorous war against Mahonism.

Northern and Southern Prejudice.

General Gordon's visit to Ohio will have one good result, even if it has no other.

Here the honest and industrious poor man is sure of a livelihood, sure of a home, and sure of a voice in the government under which he lives. Let "Veritas" look upon this picture and then take a look at Ohio.

K. C. MURRAY, of Virginia, a brother of Dr. P. E. Murray, of Atlanta, has been appointed to fill the position of editor on the Norfolk Landmark, solon and ably filled by Captain James Barron Hope, the poet editor. The selection is a good one. Mr. Murray is intelligent, bright and a forcible writer. He will wage a vigorous war against Mahonism.

MRS. WITTER, President. Miss Slocum, Secretary.

JACKSON-MORRISON.

Two South Carolinians United in Marriage in Atlanta Yesterday.

Miss Hattie Jackson, a handsome, entertaining lady from near Walhalla, S. C., was united in marriage yesterday to Mr. J. W. Morrison, of the same state, the ceremony occurring at the residence of Mr. W. T. Trotter, on Jackson Street.

Miss Jackson came to Atlanta during the season as the guest of Mrs. Trotter, and during the second week of the show Mr. Morrison came, too.

The lady and gentleman had known each other for some time, and during his visit Mr. Morrison proposed and was accepted. At that time it was thought that they would be married at the bride's home, but when Mr. Morrison went back to Carolina and approached her parents they objected. Day before yesterday Mr. Morrison came to Atlanta again bringing the young couple together.

The young lady concluded that her parents had no cause to object and consented to Mr. Morrison's urgent appeal to marry in Atlanta, and return to Carolina as his bride. The marriage took place yesterday afternoon, and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left for their home.

A QUIET WEDDING.

A Montgomery Belle United in Marriage to an Atlanta.

A quiet, pleasant wedding occurred last night at the Piedmont hotel, on Peachtree street, the contracting parties being Miss L. A. Powers, of Montgomery, Ala., and Mr. C. B. Hooks, of Atlanta.

Miss Powers has been visiting relatives at the hotel for some time past. She and Mr. Hooks have been acquainted a long time, and their marriage was the result of a long courtship. Only a few friends and relatives were present. The Rev. Dr. A. G. Thomas officiated.

• • • Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and radically cured. Address, in confidence, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Let every woman in Atlanta who is opposed to bar-rooms, join the Woman's Prohibition Association at once.

MARTIN SURRENDERS

And Making a Bond Goes Out at Will.

OTHER EVENTS OF THE DAY

A Woman Rides in the Wagon—Preston Ramsey Goes to the Rock File—Other Arrests.

George Martin, editor and proprietor of the Atlanta Avalanche, for whom a warrant was issued day before yesterday because the grand jury had found a true bill against him, walked into the courthouse yesterday, asking:

"Where is the sheriff's office?"

"First room on the left there," answered Mr. Langford, the custodian of the building, as he directed his index finger towards the office.

Mr. Martin followed the direction indicated, and after shoving his nose into the ordinary's office, moved on to the sheriff's office. As he walked into the office there was a pleasant smile on his face. Looking around, he asked:

"Is Sheriff Thomas in?"

"He is here," answered the sheriff, crawling down from his high stool.

"Are you Sheriff Thomas?" asked Mr. Martin.

"Martin is my name—George Martin, I am proprietor of the Avalanche and you have a warrant here for me. I came down to give myself up and make bond."

"Ah, then, Mr. Martin you are my prisoner," said Sheriff Thomas. "But here is the bond and the bond can be made in a few minutes."

Mr. Martin read the warrant and, with a pleasant smile on his face, asked what bond was wanted. The sheriff gave Mr. Martin all the information necessary, and in a few minutes a satisfactory bond was made and Mr. Martin left the courthouse and went about his business.

There was a Row at the Church.

A deacon in a church, made famous by the killing of Preacher Clemmons, encountered Milled Officers Harris and Hamilton, who were on their way to the residence of Jasper Green and John Williams, two negro men. The officers succeeded in arresting Green, but could not find Williams. Later, in the day Green was arraigned in police court charged with being a negro and the officers learned that the dead preacher's congregation gave a supper night before last at the church for the purpose of raising money with which to build a monument to the preacher. During the evening Green and Williams became disorderly, and when the deacon remonstrated with them, Williams drew a knife and defied everybody. A stampede ensued, during which Williams used his knife wickedly upon a negro woman, whose wounds are said to be dangerous. Judge Anderson fined Green twenty dollars and costs and instructed the officer to use every effort to secure Williams. Green could not pay the fine and was sent to the stockade.

He Got Off Easy.

John Gravett, the railroad engineer who was arrested night before last because his blue-eyed wife assured him that he was trying to shoot her, was arraigned in police court yesterday morning. The officer who made the arrest was not present, and the only witness called was his wife. The court remanded him.

It is expected that great speeches will be made by Senator A. H. Colquitt and other equally distinguished and popular orators.

Bishop H. M. Turner will also speak on this occasion.

[Communicated.]

THE MASS MEETING TONIGHT.

The mass meeting of prohibitionists tonight is to be held at

ELLIOTT, ROSSER &amp; CO.'S WAREHOUSE,

on Peachtree Street, between Forsyth and Peachtree streets.

This is the vantage place where the famous reporters' walking stick was had.

It is expected that great speeches will be made by Senator A. H. Colquitt and other equally distinguished and popular orators.

Bishop H. M. Turner will also speak on this occasion.

HE GOT OFF EASY.

Frank Scott, a negro man living near the Georgia Pacific railroad sheds in the western portion of the city, had his left foot crushed yesterday.

Frank Scott's brother who was working at the oil company's depot yesterday, when he carried dinner at noon, while the laborer was eating dinner, Scott was assisting one of the drivers to put some barrels of oil on a wagon. In handling a barrel, Scott let it slip from his grasp, and in falling the edge of the barrel cut through the skin on the instep of the left foot.

The barrel was cut through the skin so sharp that it amputated the foot almost as neatly as a knife could have done.

The wound was extremely painful, and until a physician arrived Scott suffered intensely.

Preston Ramsey, the young negro who was never so happy as when in the stockade, was given a ride out yesterday in the Black Maria, and for the next twenty-one days will remain the guest of the city. Ramsey shaped a small child on Whitehall street yesterday morning and, when Patrolmen Marshall and Bushell arrested him, he was very abusive. In police court yesterday morning he was fined ten dollars and cost.

Two Cooks Engaged in a Fight.

Addie Jackson and Lou Clarke, two negro women who had engaged in a cook's strike last night while preparing supper and fought. For getting pans and skillets used as weapons and with a blow Jackson knocked Clarke senseless. A telephone call was made upon police headquarters and Call Officer Green arrested both women. They are booked for disorderly conduct and quarreling.

Healed in the Patrol Wagon.

Maggie Davis, a white woman, unknown in police circles, was found on Castleberry street, near Peachtree, last night. She was found lying on the sidewalk, having fallen, and the bone so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. Scott was removed to his home, and the foot was cut off, only the heel being left.

MISS ELMORE'S JULIA.

An Excellent Performance by an Excellent Company—Lady Clancy.

Perhaps it was better to analyze the main features of Miss Elmore's characterization of the part of Julia than to summarize at the beginning that her performance stamps her as one of the greatest dramatic actresses of the day. Last season in her Camille she showed unequalled power to lay bare the heart of suffering man to even the stern repression of colder men to be broken down by her flood gates of emotion like woman, showing every shade of that particular woman's varying mood with fidelity. In the part of Julia, Miss Elmore has found the opportunity to display a grand sweep of human passion, in the depiction of which she has power and intensity unsurpassed by any artist of the day. On her first entrance, Miss Elmore's character was immediately apparent, and her entire realization of the part of Julia was evident. The audience was spellbound by the all-brighting influences of the great world. Receiving in happy ignorance she is naturally exquisitely graceful, lightness and suppleness make the performances of both art. At the coming of the lover, it is not the shuddering warmth of the heart's desire that is manifested, but a wild exuberance of joy in the voices of the two. The girl's ambition, the possession of wealth and title. In her sudden transformation into the "grand dame" she seems to have lost her hold on the audience, but the stern repression of colder men to be broken down by her flood gates of emotion like woman, showing every shade of that particular woman's varying mood with fidelity. In the part of Julia, Miss Elmore has found the opportunity to display a grand sweep of human passion, in the depiction of which she has power and intensity unsurpassed by any artist of the day. In the part of Julia, Miss Elmore has found the opportunity to display a grand sweep of human passion, in the depiction of which she has power and intensity unsurpassed by any artist of the day. On her first entrance, Miss Elmore's character was immediately apparent, and her entire realization of the part of Julia was evident. The audience was spellbound by the all-brighting influences of the great world. Receiving in happy ignorance she is naturally exquisitely graceful, lightness and suppleness make the performances of both art. At the coming of the lover, it is not the shuddering warmth of the heart's desire that is manifested, but a wild exuberance of joy in the voices of the two.
